Campaign Brief: Summer BOGO

Policy ID: PROMO-POL-001 · Version 1.0 · Effective June 15 – July 31, 2026

"Buy one, get one 50% off" is the customer-facing framing — internally, this is a targeted-margin promotion, not a blanket discount, and the mechanics below determine eligibility line by line, not by category.

Campaign Mechanics

The lower-priced of any two qualifying items in a single transaction is discounted 50%. Qualifying items are limited to the categories listed in the table below — this is not a store-wide promotion, and the two items do not need to be the same category, only both individually qualifying.

Category	Qualifies	Notes
Footwear	Yes ¹	Excludes clearance-tagged pairs
Outerwear	Yes
Accessories	Yes ²	Jewelry excluded
Electronics	No	Never eligible for BOGO campaigns per PROMO-POL-002 category exclusions
Gift cards	No	Never eligible — see GC-POL-001 Section 1

Stacking with Loyalty Discounts

This campaign follows the standard stacking order defined in PROMO-POL-002 — a `GOLD_TIER` or `PLATINUM_TIER` loyalty percentage is applied first, then the BOGO 50% discount is calculated on the resulting post-loyalty price of the lower-priced qualifying item, not the original tag price. The combined-discount 50% cap from PROMO-POL-002 Section 3 still applies across the whole transaction.

Return Handling for BOGO Transactions

If only one item from a BOGO pair is returned, the remaining item loses its BOGO eligibility retroactively and is re-priced to full price for the purposes of the refund calculation on the returned item³ — the customer keeps the remaining item at its original BOGO price, but the refunded amount on the returned item reflects what it would have cost as a standalone purchase, not half its ticket price. This is a frequent source of refund-amount disputes at the register and should be explained to the customer proactively at the time of the return, not after the refund amount is questioned.

Reporting

Daily BOGO transaction volume and average discount value are tracked against a target margin-impact ceiling; if the campaign's actual margin impact exceeds the modeled ceiling by more than 15% in any 3-day window, the campaign is subject to early termination at the discretion of merchandising, with 48 hours' notice to stores before the promotion is pulled from the POS system.

¹ Footwear exclusion for clearance-tagged pairs was added after the prior BOGO campaign (Spring 2026) saw clearance footwear discounted twice — once via markdown, once via BOGO — well beyond the intended margin impact.

² Jewelry is excluded from the Accessories category specifically due to its already-thin margin relative to other accessories.

³ This re-pricing rule applies to the BOGO discount only; any separately-applied loyalty discount on the returned item is still refunded per standard Returns Policy RET-POL-001 rules.
